During the show Benny was asked for 85 cents for a telephone call another man had made to El Centro.

"The least we could do was to pay him back," Gossman said. "Besides we feel we have something in common with Mr. Benny. After all, here we have Palm Springs weather at Jack Benny prices."

Two Faces of America

When a teen-ager recently tangled with John Glenn near his church, the best and the worst of America were side by side for a brief moment.

Suppose this misguided young ruffian had actually struck the astronaut. What a picture for the nation and the world if the man who survived the hazards of rocket flight, had had to display a bandaged face.

Glenn believes the boy and his crude companions did not recognize him. But this in no way alters the meaning of the incident.

If the offending teen-agers did not know who he was, they first-off convicted themselves of woeful ignorance. Secondly, his identity is not the crucial matter. For at that moment, Glenn simply was standing in for any decent American who might protest youthful misbehavior.

Perhaps the most striking thing about the episode is that it arrayed the discipline of John Glenn against the all too common undisciplined of a determinedly irresponsible minority of Americans.

The astronaut's discipline in his chosen field is well established. But in the teenage incident he displayed the discipline of the whole man, the responsible citizen, not content with merely being decent. Insistent on speaking and acting for decency.

Oddly, not long after this event in Arlington, Va., U. N. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson—unaware of the incident—called upon Americans to see Glenn as a vivid, ready symbol of dedication and discipline.

In the astronaut, said Stevenson, "we can perhaps glimpse some reflection of the kind of discipline and restraint which we all need in some measure if our generation is to achieve great tasks, not only in the upper air but here and now in this bewildered and floundering world."

Stevenson, properly, is not despairing. He remarks the thousands of young Americans who volunteer for the rights of the peace corps, the uncomplaining military reservists, the dedicated young scientists, the countless "unsung citizens" who apply themselves diligently and faithfully to tasks which reward them and serve their community and nation.

Yet clearly he does not believe this spirit, this high self-control, grips enough of us. The tyranny of the undisciplined minority exerts a force beyond its numbers in what he calls this "black age."

Stevenson, like many others, sees too much stress on comfort and ease, "anathema" to the young, and "no flat" there is neither enough hard work nor enough standing up for the right and the good.

John Glenn stood for all these admirable things when he climbed into his capsule to orbit the earth.

He stood for them in less when he put a restraining hand on a group of youngsters still untouched by the lessons of discipline he has long since mastered.

PERPETUAL TASK

The federal government's role in health programs is always controversial. Wide public sympathy seems likely, however, for President Kennedy's new proposal to use federal funds to help immunize millions of United States youngsters against such infectious diseases as polio, whooping cough, tetanus and diphtheria.

Nevertheless, as presented in the President's health message and urged for by administration officials, the immunization program is fuzzy at a couple of points.

The President says the aim is to "stamp out" the four diseases mentioned. Underlining this, a spokesman for health, education and welfare calls it a "once for all" program. It is officially estimated that output of 36 million dollars in federal money over a three-year period would achieve this objective.

Yet it is misleading to describe such a program as "once for all" even if, under federal financial spur, local communities should succeed in vaccinating all the unprotected in the next three years.

The reason: Some four million new children come along every year, and millions who are or may be vaccinated need booster shots to keep their guard up. Millions of adults, of course, can use the same protection.

Immunization, once launched on a big scale, is not a crash effort but an endless and inevitably costly endeavor.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON, March 27—Conservative Republicans and Democrats are growing increasingly bitter in their attacks on the administration of the American press, especially newspapers in large Eastern cities, and certain television and radio commentators.

"Much too pro-Kennedy," is their complaint.

"The heretical setting of a report 'Ev and Charlie show,' in contrast to President Kennedy's position, is a deliberate attempt to mislead the public," said a press conference, led by Senate minority leader Everett McKinley Dirksen, who said he had never seen an administration so organized in the field of propaganda as President Kennedy's.

"I have never seen an administration so organized in the field of propaganda as President Kennedy's."

"I've had cause for his good-natured grouching. He and house minority leader Charles Abraham Hialek attracted only 17 reporters to their act in the gloomy capital, but he was where the supreme court case was heard. On the same day, the President drew 130, with almost as many whirling TV machines and radio commentators as newspaper reporters."

"BLEEDING HEART"—Addressing the house recently, Rep. John Bell Williams, a Mississippi Democrat, branded the Washington Post and Times-Herald as a "bleeding heart" newspaper because of its frequent editorial and cartoon attacks on the South's racial segregation attitude and actions.

Quoting an editorial in a Jackson, Miss. newspaper, he said that, while the Post depicted racial violence in the South, it should condemn the violence against the current crime sweeping the Southeast.

"EQUIVOQUE PASSION"—In a letter to the New York Times, two prominent Republicans of that city took umbrage at a reporter's account of a speech by President Kennedy's brother-in-law, Charles, Jr., in which he said that it was "an exaggeration and a distortion."

Wickham had written that Kennedy displayed such qualities as "eloquence, cogency, passion and conviction." In rebuttal, the GOP complainants said that "Mr. Kennedy may have conviction and, on occasion, has manifested cogency, but eloquence and passion are rarely evident."

"ONE DAY IN THE DED"—It is no more important that he be a great President than a great speaker.

Other newspapers that have come under conservative criticism from the right are the Washington Evening Star, the Baltimore Sun and that "Republican bible"—the New York Herald Tribune. The conservatives' latest target is "The New York Times," which they say is "a newspaper that is not only a disgrace to the name of journalism but also a disgrace to the name of the United States."

Other presidents complained—There is a vast difference in today's grip against the press from earlier vendettas. Many recent Presidents have "burned" the press, but Kennedy's editorial attacks toward their programs.

Herbert Hoover was permanently downcast, although he rarely expressed it in public. He complained bitterly to a few close friends as the late Mark Sullivan, William Howard Taft and others. TD said that newspapers "are not only a disgrace to the name of journalism but also a disgrace to the name of the United States."

Today, however, despite setbacks at certain editorial days, it is no more important that he be a great President than a great speaker.

The Rev. Meredith Groves of the Methodist church solemnized the rites before a flower-banked fireplace.

Her fingertip veil of bridal lace was held by a train of rose lace studded with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of red and white roses tied with white satin ribbons.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Elsie Ogden, Utah, sister of the bride. She wore a rose and red gown. Mary Leaton, Karen, daughter of the bridegroom, wore a blue dress. Each wore a corsage of red roses and carnations.

Best man was D. Vere B. Sloan. The mother of the bride wore a blue-green dress and black accessories. The bridegroom's mother chose a navy blue suit with matching accessories. Each wore a rose and white carnation corsage.

The wedding cake was topped with white frosting and decorated with the same 30 guests included: Mickey Nicholson, brother of the bride; Malia, Mrs. Jean, Elsie Ogden, Utah, sister of the bride; Karen, daughter of the bridegroom; and his grandfather from Chalmers.

The bride changed to a red fitted dress with black accessories and the corsage from her bridegroom for traveling. Floods Lash Middle West Farm Lands

By United Press International
Swollen streams bled high waters, channeled into overtopped levees and forced nearly 300,000 people from their homes in Midwest states today.

Thousands of acres of farmland were being pelted by floodwaters and battered by giant ice cakes, some 40 feet in diameter. Scores more homes were threatened and at least one community—Valley, Neb.—was virtually isolated.

An 8-year-old girl was missing and believed drowned in flooding at Robble Creek, near Dodge, Neb. At Mount Vernon, Ill., a red Cross disaster prevention institute was canceled because most of the instructors were absent or flood duty.

At Platte, Neb., state police closed spectators from a bridge over the Platte river. Water flooded the Elkhorn river yesterday. Three telephone linesmen died in a flood in Nebraska. The river washed out a county road and carried away their boat. The flood came to a stop until help arrived.

Nebraska's Platte river was three miles wide. Flooding in the Missouri and North rivers, residential areas were inundated at Valley, Mo. Two hundred persons were homeless at West Point and national guard units patrolled the area to prevent looting.

All roads leading to Valley, Neb., were closed. Churning water was 100 feet deep. U.S. 275 near Beemer, Neb., yesterday. One bridge was carried away at Beemer and another on U.S. 81 was closed because of flood damage at Madison, Neb.

Fifteen families were evacuated from homes at Springfield, La., and more asked to leave in the state. Two families left trailer homes at Marshalltown, Ia., and families asked to evacuate homes along Sioux city, Floyd river.

JERUSALEM, Israel, March 27 (AP)—The state of Israel charged today that hundreds of documents, "all drenched in Jewish blood," pointed to Adolf Eichmann's guilt in the slaughter of European Jewry.

Stocks

NEW YORK, March 27.—A brief session today, leaving prices lower for the second consecutive session. The lack of follow-through on the short rally reflected a statement by Secretary of Commerce Cordell Hull that the recovery may drag behind expectations until mid-June. General Motors and other common stocks were hard hit and declines in the market were accounted for much of the dip in the popular market indicators.

Declines in the tobacco stocks, ranging from one point to three points, were still believed to stem from the new smoking-cancer scare which developed last week. Selling yesterday was strong in an otherwise dull market. In chemicals, gains on Du Pont were narrow.

Large trading features included a drop in the stock of the new, Midcon development up 15 points on a block of 100,000 shares. A block of 57,000 shares of Chicago Pneumatic tool appeared on the market, selling off 10 points.

Some electronics, notably computer-oriented issues, also showed gains. Burroughs was down around a point, trading ex-dividend and National Cash Register was up 1 point, reflecting its plans for a rights offering to stockholders at $100 per common share plus a 10% stock dividend.

Cellulose and Hercules were strong and Pepsi-Cola went in a scrambled fight. IBM broke the 100-point barrier, ending the day at 100.00. The stock was up 1 point, reflecting its plans for a rights offering to stockholders at $100 per common share plus a 10% stock dividend.

Acting at midmarket were Pennsylvania Railroad down on a block of 12,000 shares and 20,000 shares of Xerox and MCA were weak, both off around two points.

Grains

CHICAGO, March 27.—Grain futures were a little lower today, with wheat leading the decline. The market was generally quiet, with only a few scattered trades. The price of wheat was down 1/4 cent, while corn was down 1/8 cent.
